Looking Ahead to 2026

That's a wrap! We hope you had a successful 2025 season. It was a unique year, with a short planting season, wet summer, unusually high Southern rust pressure, and harvest challenges to name a few hurdles thrown our way. Now the million-dollar question is what challenges next year will bring. Let us help you prepare for 2026 – talk to Curt or Meghan about your seed needs.

Is Seed Treatment Worthwhile?

As you plan for next season, you may wonder if seed treatment is worth the cost. The short answer is yes, but here's more on why. Every season is different and unpredictable, so it's best to plan ahead for common challenges that can rob your yield potential. Seed treatments protect seeds from the start against disease, insect, & nematode damage that begins early on and has no effective rescue treatment options later in the season such as Phytophthora, SDS, & SCN in soybeans and Fusarium, Pythium, wireworms, cutworms, etc. in corn. Early planted fields are at greater risk for such issues, especially if soil & weather conditions are suboptimal. Protect your crop and bottom line with Acceleron seed treatment solutions. All DEKALB corn comes treated while our soybeans are treated here at our facility, with the option of the standard Acceleron or Acceleron plus ILeVO for added protection against sudden death syndrome and soybean cyst nematode. Replace up to 40 lbs of synthetic N with Pivot Bio G3! The gene-edited microbes fix N all season long to feed your crop while improving plant health and yield potential. Our on-farm demo showed an average of 4.4 bu/ac advantage with Pivot vs. the untreated checks. With competitive pricing & 0% financing with JDF or Rabo, it's an easy choice. Choose a better, sustainable N source!
